Hi,

I'm looking for software guy to finish a simple java desktop software, Its 50% done by previous developer, he had an emergency so had to withdraw.

Software fetches and records stock price of given companies using Yahoo Finance (needs to be replaced with google finance) and then does some calculation and then displays the result.

- lets you add any company stock
- Fetches the initial opening high and initial opening low between 9:15 AM-9:30 AM, of all the listed companies.
- Then fetches and calculates the moving average between 9:30-10:30 of those companies
- Then Calculates the %change between initial opening high and moving average, initial opening low and moving average
- Displays everything in a table

Source code of previous pending software available, will be given.
